EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

The Legatum Global Prosperity Index (2016) has ranked Canada 3rd out of 149 nations in Business Environment. The Business Environment sub-index measures a country's entrepreneurial environment including its business infrastructure, barriers to innovation and labor market flexibility. This ranking indicates that there are great employment opportunities available in Canada for people from all walks of life, which again is one of Canada immigration benefits.

Work & Study Abroad (Canada):

Working while studying, it's a good way to gain Canada working experience and help support while you are studying abroad, through our partners balance your work hours with your study obligations so your academic performance isn't compromised, thereby getting experience of Canadian work place developing skills such as communication, teamwork, timekeeping and interpersonal communication skills.

Studying at a university in Canada:

Canadian's higher education system is also known for its specialized technical institutions. They educated tens of thousands of specialists every year in subjects like engineering or computer science etc. If you are seeking a degree in medicine, medical schools in Canada are known for their world-class education. Among the best-ranked are University of Toronto and the Manitoba University.

Living in Canada as a student:

Studying in Canada is attractive not only academically, but also for the high quality of life available there. The country's economy has grown dramatically over the past 50 years. It is modern, clean, safe and it offers all of the social and cultural opportunities available elsewhere, but at a cost of living still much lower, and international students are flocking there.

Tuition fees and cost of living

Canada is an attractive destination for students. International students can study at public universities in Canada at an average cost of 8,000-11,000CAD per section (First and second semester) for a first degree, while fees for higher degrees and vocational programs average at 10,000-20,000 CAD per year.

Canada costs of living are also surprisingly low, and in fact lower than in most other European countries. A place in a student dormitory may cost less than 800 CAD per month for a shared room. Overall, depending on the city on what lifestyle you desire, you might get by on less than 500 CAD per month.

Accommodation

There are many different options for arranging student accommodation in Canada. They vary depending on the city and higher education institution you choose. Many Canadian Universities have their own dormitories, which are usually the cheapest option available. However, most Canadian students prefer to rent a room in a private apartment.

Student Card

The student card is the size of a credit card, but it can change your life. Not only does it confirm your student status and allow access to libraries and other HEI facilities, but it also entitles you to all kinds of student discounts, most important of them being a 50% discount on public. There is also – up to age 26 – a 37% discount on national railways, allowing you to travel all around the country for less. Some other transport companies, as well as theatres, museums and cinemas, even restaurants, have special prices for students. In some HEIs, the student union provides additional discounts for students. So get your student card and enjoy the city!
